Call for partnership

Dear Sir or Madam

Since 2005, the OEP has set itself the objective of promoting plurilingualism and linguistic and cultural diversity and, in order to support this objective, of highlighting all the actors involved in plurilingualism and linguistic and cultural diversity, whatever their field of activity.

At the same time, through ongoing exchanges with all of them, the OEP has endeavoured to promote the emergence of a common and coherent vision of policies for plurilingualism and linguistic and cultural diversity in all aspects of political, economic, social and cultural life.

Finally, it has endeavoured to ensure maximum dissemination of these reflections on its own scale, which is that of a strategic player with its specificity as an independent, cross-sectoral body from civil society, in particular through its newsletter, its website and its Facebook and Twitter pages.

As you know, the European Conference on Plurilingualism is a key moment in this action. The conference may look like a congress, but it is not a congress like any other. It is an event at which all those involved in plurilingualism, by their presence or by their support, can show their commitment to a shared approach with the aim of changing things and ways of working.

The impression we have is that in the last ten years or so, the ideas of plurilingualism have progressed, but that much remains to be done, particularly with regard to political decision-makers and public opinion. In other words, the main task is still ahead of us.

The conferences are always organised with a main partner based in the country where they are held. For this 6th edition, the partner chosen is the Spanish University of Cadiz.

We hereby invite you to

- 1) participate in the European Conference on Plurilingualism, in its preparation, to attend or to speak on one of the four themes. A place will be reserved for the actors of plurilingualism, either within the themes or in a specific way.
- 2) declare yourself as a partner of the Conference by filling in the attached form.
- 3) join the OEP if you wish. Registration for the conference is in the form of a specific membership.

As a partner of the conference, you will be called upon to carry out one or more of the following tasks

- Participate in the dissemination of the call for papers (website, newsletter, facebook and twitter pages, etc.)
- Provide content for the conference and propose communications and/or cultural events
- Propose cultural events on site and outside of the conference site (by including events on the occasion of the conference in your programme)
- Make premises and equipment available
- Participate in the definition of the event's programme
- Communicate on the event by using communication tools (poster, flyer, postcard, bookmark, your newsletter, your website, etc.) and by establishing regular relations with the media.
- Participate in funding (contributions from 300 euros), by proposing sources of funding, and by relaying fundraising appeals.
- Participating in the extension of the network of partners
- Facilitate round tables
- Participate in the elaboration of final conclusions
- Participate in the dissemination of plurilingualism and linguistic and cultural diversity in general and the conclusions of the conference in particular

- Co-signing a common declaration on plurilingualism, derived from the conclusions of the 6th Conference
- Ensure the presence of your organisation in the communication media (participants' file, programmes, documentation, workshop, stand, website)
- Any other mission that you may propose that would enhance the value of your partnership as much as the conference itself.

These tasks should be explained in question 4) of the form, paragraph "Describe your role in the project".

Please fill in the attached form and return it before 31 December 2021, by e-mail to
